Chancellor Says Press Distorted Student Rebellions

By DAVID GREGSON
Sentinel Staff Writer

The failure of California voters to approve Prop. 3 in last Tuesday's election has dealt a "crippling blow to the UCSD School of Medicine," "a bitter blow to the UCSD fine arts faculty," and has seriously jeopardized the future of the entire campus, according to Dr. William J. McGill, UCSD chancellor.

Dr. McGill attributed the failure of Prop. 3 to "voter rebellion against the disciplinary problems manifest in the universities and state colleges."

"It is extremely unfortunate," said McGill, "for in my judgment this kind of reactivity, stimulated by sensational and often distorted accounts in the press, will have the effect of driving high quality professors out of the state, leaving the university system to the dissidents and militants who have no other place to go."

The passage of Prop. 3 would have meant $30,769,500 for the San Diego Campus—$16,644,000 in bond funds and $14,125,500 in Federal funds related to the bond funds.

What will UCSD do to survive this disaster? "It is too early to tell because we are still attempting to evaluate difficulties and to reevaluate priorities," said McGill. "The most serious problem is in the School of Medicine. Both the loss of the wing on the University Hospital and the wing on the Clinical Sciences Building, if sustained, is a crippling blow to the School of Medicine. It wipes out major research facilities and makes it difficult to expand our medical faculty."

"Even when the university provides the faculty positions for us expansion will be difficult," said McGill. "We have the positions but we do not have the research space and facilities to offer the people we are seeking to attract."

"That is the heart of the difficulty and it is very serious. I hope that the legislature, in considering the need for expanded medical facilities in San Diego and the large investment already made in our medical school, will help us to find new resources."

"Next in line in the array of difficulties is the loss of the so-called Cluster Fine Arts Building scheduled for construction immediately adjacent to Muir College," said McGill. "This is to be an important arts center of the campus providing facilities for faculty in music, visual arts, and drama as well as for a variety of rooms and facilities for students working in the arts. I am sure that the loss or prolonged delay of the Cluster Fine Arts Building will be a bitter blow to our fine arts faculty and I am worried about the consequences."

"Finally," he said, "it appears that the construction of a third college in the years 1973-74 is now put into jeopardy. It may be necessary to consider a drastic cut-back in the expansion of UCSD after the third college opens in Camp Matthews in 1970. The problem is that we have no means to provide for construction of a third college."

"Muir College, the second of the UCSD colleges, is now under construction. Its buildings are fully funded and Muir College expects to vacate its former quarters in Camp Matthews beginning in the Autumn of 1969."

Plan To Recognize Lifeguards Okayed

Heroic exploits of San Diego's lifeguards are going to get official recognition from the Ocean Beach Town Council.

Establishment of an annual award, to be given to the "outstanding lifeguard of the year," was voted by the Council's board of directors Thursday night at their meeting in St. Peter's-by-the-Sea Lutheran Church.

The prize will be known as the Charles W. Hardy Award in memory of the late lifeguard captain who for many years headed the city's lifeguard service.

Ned Titlow, immediate past president of the Council, and Ray Perine initiated the move to establish the award. They set up the presentation in cooperation with Roger Chung, city Aquatics Superintendent, and Capt. Robert Nelson of the lifeguard service.

Local Women Sew To Make Brighter Yule

It's going to be a brighter Christmas for some minority families in Southeast San Diego, thanks to a project launched by the Family Service League.

Comprised of housewives residing in the Peninsula, the League recently started a free sewing class at the Southeast Branch YMCA. The response has been highly gratifying, according to PSL president Mrs. Harold L. Smith, of 3217 Edith Lane.

In previous years the League's main project was a "Christmas Tree Fantasy" held at the House of Hospitality.

"We decided to dedicate this year to service and chose the free sewing class to help disadvantaged families in Southeast San Diego," said Mrs. Smith.

Most of the students are busily engaged making Christmas dresses for themselves, Christmas clothes for their children, doll clothes and other garments.

The instructors are Mrs. Oscar Paris, of 2963 Chatsworth Blvd., and Mrs. William Prickett, of 708 Temple St.

Mrs. Ethel M. Washington, community worker on the southeast staff of the Family Service Association, recruited students for the class and also provides transportation where necessary.

"Informality of these classes provides a relaxing atmosphere for these wives," said Mrs. Washington. "It is giving them an opportunity they have never had before."

The students are taught basic sewing from the beginning and learn how to work with patterns. Members of the PSL provide all the material.

"We show them how to make anything they want to," said Mrs. Smith. "Most of them have never had any experience with sewing machines. As long as we can help these women, we hope to keep the class going indefinitely."

"In addition to teaching them how to sew, the project has provided them with a valuable social outlet."

Class members include Esie Harris, Margaret Harris, Sharon Hayes, Sue Knotts, Ruth Lovett, Patricia Richardson, Janis Robertson, Ophelia Ringgold, Elnora Wright, Ruth Vance, Constance Turner, Lois Williams, Gwendolyn Weaver and Barbara McElroy.

Although the project is a success, it is handicapped by a shortage of sewing machines. If you have one you'd like to donate, contact Mrs. Smith at 222-6949.

at Norfolk, Va.

Seven lifeguard officers headed by Nelson will choose the recipient each year, basing their selection on outstanding rescues, overall performance, progress reports, contributions to the lifeguard service and length of service.

A permanent plaque will be donated by the Council. It will bear the name of each winner and the date of his award, and will be displayed at the Lifeguard Control Office at Quivira Basin. Each winner will also get an individual plaque.

This year's recipient, yet to be selected, will be honored at a ceremony next month. Subsequent awards will be presented in August of each year.

Outstanding lifeguards were cited in previous years by American Legion Post 433.

In other action, the board of directors appointed an ad hoc committee to investigate "the hippie situation" along Newport Avenue.

Named to the committee were Mrs. Fran Hanks, executive director, Councilman Sam Loftin, Mrs. Page Cummings, Spike Webb and Titlow.

The board tabled action on six recommendations pertaining to the OBTC's recently formed youth council. Producing most of the disagreement was a recommendation entitling the youths to associate membership for $1 a year.

The board approved a motion authorizing the president and executive director to participate in organization of a group representing various town councils.

Ray Perine announced that the anti-litter committee has been renamed the "Beautify Ocean Beach" committee.

He said BOB will conduct a "paint the trash can contest" Dec. 8 at the parking lots of the Ocean Beach branches of the Silver Gate Savings & Loan Association and Bank of America.

Prizes will be offered in three divisions, 12 years and under, 13 to 19 years, and adults.

Services will be held at 8:30 and 11 a.m. with Sunday School at 9:45. Rev. Hugh W. Power, pastor, will have as his sermon topic "The Urgent Fellowship." He will be assisted in the morning service by Rev. P. O. Jensen, pastor of the church from 1940-48.

Military Takes Action Against Peep Shows

The local Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board has notified 17 of San Diego's 28 "peep show" establishments that it has declared them off-limits.

The board put the businesses off-limits to military personnel after several days of hearings with local peep show operators.

Reasons given for the action were that the peep shows have substandard lighting and physical arrangements which make practical inspection impossible and contribute to the attraction of sexual deviates, cause lewd and lascivious conduct, and constitute a hazard to the welfare of peep show customers.

The military apparently decided to take action after a San Diego ordinance passed by the City Council was challenged in court by several peep show operators. The outcome of court hearings.

The city ordinance called for stricter controls of lighting requirements. Military spokesman addressed the City Council in support of the ordinance during hearings before its passage. The military had indicated that it would probably take action of its own if the city did not.

Peep shows not declared off-limits have complied with previously-announced requirements of the disciplinary board. Others are in the process of complying.

"The situation I am portraying is one involving a sudden halt as resources for construction of the third college have been placed in jeopardy," said McGill.

"All of these difficulties are invoked with the failure of Prop. 3," he said. "We are going to have to make adjustments. I pray that they will not be drastic. I guarantee they will not be pleasant."

"It is still too early to determine what the nature of these adjustments might be and to evaluate the full scope of our problems."

McGill warned, "You are going to see resignations in the faculty" as hopes are crushed by the dim prospects at the school.

Here are the statistical casualties: Clinical Science Building, $8,831,000; Fine Arts Cluster Building $4,333,000 plus $250,000 additional funds for the expansion of the theater by Ernest W. Mandeville; a marine biology and research building at Scripps Institution of Oceanography, $6,744,600; oceanographic collection building, $2,446,900; improvements at University Hospital, $750,000; working drawings for the University Hospital addition, $181,000; construction of animal facilities, $546,000, and academic buildings of the third college, $509,000.

Youths Cause $500 Damage

All night lights at the Linda Vista Recreation Center were shot out with BB pellets this week and seven windows were damaged by a group of Linda Vista youths.

At the same time, car headlights were destroyed, antennas broken off cars, and street lights shot. Ted Schroder, director of the center, said the incident occurred Tuesday night while a group of Walker Scott employees were meeting at the center. Police estimated damage at over $500.

It is also believed that the youths loosened a wheel on one of the cars which resulted in the loss of the wheel on the freeway after the meeting, causing a minor accident and damage to the automobile.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH

By
DOCTOR JOHN J. FLYNN
Doctor of Chiropractic

Q—My wife tells me that she has nerve pain. I've heard of all kinds of pain but, that's a new one on me. What do you think?

A—It's probably just a question of what she really means. Nerve irritation does cause pain and a structurally defective spine causes nerve irritation. Pain from such a condition can cause such diverse health problems as neuritis, neuralgia, bursitis, sciatica, lumbago and vicious headaches. These common conditions have been traced directly to nerve problems. What often happens is that a vertebral segment becomes misaligned on the spinal column causing pressure, or pinching that irritates a nerve. Pain is immediately felt in that part of the body supplied by this nerve. Regardless of what your wife calls this pain, the suffering is very real. She should have an x-ray taken and a Chiropractic examination to determine if a spinal misalignment is causing her problem. If so, she can be helped.

DON'T FEEL RIGHT
Q—I'm over 65 and just never seem to feel right.

Not real bad but, not right either. I take pills but they don't seem to help. What can you suggest?

A—I don't think your age is your real problem. One of the most important factors in good health is a perfectly functioning nervous system. If the full, normal transmission of nerve energy is being carried properly through your main nerve branch network to all parts of your body then, you should be enjoying good health. But, if this life force is interfered with, your resistance to disease is lowered and a loss of energy is felt. I'd check with your Chiropractor. You may have a spinal misalignment you're unaware of. Once corrected your own restorative powers should take over and rebuild your health and energy.

Doctor Flynn welcomes your letters on health problems. Mail your questions to his office at 6943 Linda Vista Road or telephone for an appointment to discuss your problem directly with him. Consultation without obligation. Take advantage of the free x-rays, examinations, and analyses. These services are provided free as a public service. Phone now 278-2902.

Nine unforgettable moments to jot down in your datebook now for 1969 will occur July 1. December's Esquire says that you are cordially invited to present yourself at Caernarvonk, North Wales, to see a Prince Invested (bring invitation).

In May, it's off to New Guinea for a ceremonial Sing-Sing (bring pigs). Then there is the 75 best and 25 worst movies on TV, plus 10 sleepers guaranteed to keep you awake.

Sunset for this month suggests a Thanksgiving picnic beginning with a cup of piping hot "walkabout" soup as you explore the picnic site and set the table, the cold roasted turkey done the day before, cashew rice or sausage fruit dressing, down to pumpkin or mince pies. All of which provides the ease and freedom to serve and choose where you sit and no have to worry about spilling anything.

November 15th issue of the Saturday Evening Post tells of law and order, what it's all about—how the white cop patrols the black ghetto—how the Black Panthers preach violence.

Harper's Bazaar's Beauty Annual 1969 is all you need to know about beauty, youth, diet, even about choosing the right plastic surgeon.

Fortune for November tells why everybody is job hopping. Then there was a young Texan named H. Ross Perot who, a little more than six years ago, was a disgruntled I.B.M. salesman. Today his stockholdings are priced at $300 million in his Electronic Data Systems Corporation.

McCall's this month tells why 3,000,000 women have given up the pill and of the danger in our drinking water: the alarming truth about 102 U.S. cities. Also on parade are the best-dressed cars of '69!

Presbyterians Will Receive Directory

First Presbyterian Church, Fourth and Date Street, will hold a family picnic today in the patio and dining room to celebrate completion of the church directory.

The directory is made up of pictures of church families and activity interest within the church as well as a listing of members.

The picnic will be held following the 11 a.m. service with a short service after the picnic. Each family will then receive their copy of the directory.

"Peep Show" Stand Commended

This week the United States Navy took a strong move against the purveyors of pornography by making downtown "peep shows" off limits to service personnel.

Rear Admiral Marshall E. Dornin, Eleventh Naval District Commandant, spoke out against peep shows back in May when the City adopted an ordinance which it was felt would curb operations of the establishments that dot Broadway and several side streets in the downtown areas.

But the shows continued to be presented in dimly lit caverns with servicemen constituting the bulk of the patronage.

The Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board raised as its basic objections to the present conditions of local peep shows, the standard lighting and physical arrangements which make practical inspection impossible. The board believes that these conditions contribute to:

1. The attractions of sexual deviates.
2. Lewd and lascivious conduct.
3. Constitutes a hazard to welfare of peep show customers, many of whom are young military personnel.

The peep show operators can be taken off the restricted list by complying with the Navy's recommendations.

Now that the Armed Forces Disciplinary Control Board has mailed off-limit notices to 17 of the 28 peep show establishments in the San Diego area, it will be interesting to see how long they will be able to remain in operation.

The Sentinel has headlined a fight against peep shows and as far back as May 12 of this year ran a strong editorial denouncing peep shows as obscene and pointed to unsanitary conditions that existed.

The Sentinel commends the Navy for its action in protecting young servicemen from the smut that within the last year has flooded our city.

The ordinance passed by the city imposed new health and safety requirements on peep show establishments but a test case is now waiting in the courts for disposition and city officials are awaiting the outcome before enforcing the ordinance.

Meanwhile the Navy has taken things into its own hands and put the "off limits" restriction on 17 establishments. Roving shore patrolmen will see that the order is stringently enforced.

Do you realize how many book publishers are going to be caught short by a sudden outbreak of peace?

One thing they HAVEN'T called Vietnam — the war to end wars.

The way some people vote on Election Day, we'd be smarter to leave the bars open.

Vice-Presidential candidates have very little to gain in an election. Win or lose, they slip into obscurity.

Living downtown is fun; when the police sirens stop going past your house at night you wake up and say, "What was that?"

Do you know what this country REALLY needs? A good, five-cent bumper sticker remover.

Well, the pollsters were right about one thing — there WAS an election.

People who bet on elections are crazy. Pardon me, now I must go push a peanut up the Capitol steps with my nose.

Today's rumor: While cleaning out his desk, LBJ found a memo saying: "Blockade the harbor of Haiphong."

When all's said and done, the man who laid the biggest bomb was that old anti-bomber, Sen. Eugene McCarthy.

Law and Order

Grand Jury Revival Suggested

By LYLE DENNISTON

WASHINGTON—Now that the politicians have tested their claim that the public attitude on "law and order" is toughening, a more direct test of that supposedly harder sentiment might be the next step.

The people's willingness to crack down on crime could be measured more certainly if the ancient system of the "grand jury" had a revival. And a revival could come out of a pending case at the Supreme Court.

The grand jury is a centuries-old method of making accusations of crime. It assigns that role to a panel of ordinary citizens—the kind who, presumably, also get the separate job of sitting on juries that actually try criminal cases.

In its early years in English history, the grand jury stood as a barrier to over-eager prosecutors bent on upholding the king's power and his reputation from challenge by dissident subjects. But as it came to America, the grand-jury system became primarily a means of protecting a citizen against unfounded criminal charges, either by the government or by his private enemies.

A Supreme Court justice writing 84 years ago traced the grand jury back to the Magna Carta of 1215, and commented: "One of the peculiar benefits of the grand jury system as it exists in this country and England is that it is composed, as a general rule, of a body of private persons who do not hold office at the will of the government, or at the will of voters."

FAIR TEST

It still has that quality, where the grand jury is still in active use. And while it is often criticized as no more than a formality set up to approve the charges that prosecutors are eager to file, the grand jury still provides a fair test of citizens' independent judgment in favor of or against making a criminal accusation against another citizen.

But the grand jury has been used less and less in state cases, and many authorities would like to see it used even less. It is much more costly and cumbersome than the simple method of letting a prosecuting attorney decide when to start a criminal court case.

Over the past century, the filing of an "information"—or complaint—by a prosecutor has largely replaced the method of indictment by grand jury in a number of states.

Less than half the states now use the grand jury as the sole means of making serious criminal charges. In most states, the grand jury is retained only as an alternative to the prosecutor's complaint system.

For the past 84 years, since a landmark decision by the Supreme Court, the grand jury has had no standing under the U.S. Constitution in state criminal cases. The court ruled in 1884 that the grand jury clause of the 5th Amendment applied only to the federal government, not to the states.

The court has been reluctant to reexamine that decision, even though it has made other parts of the Bill of Rights binding in state cases. If the court is now persuaded that it is better to trust ordinary citizens to decide guilt, it might also be convinced that it would be better to let the citizens decide who is to be charged.

A Connecticut man convicted of trying to steal five mink coats from a fashionable West Hartford store in 1965 is now offering the justices an opportunity to reconsider the grand jury's role in the states.

His state does use a grand jury to make the charges when the crime is one that could lead to life in prison or to the death penalty. But Connecticut permits prosecutors to make the accusation when, as in the pending case of Edward R. Gyuro, the complaint is of lesser crimes such as attempted larceny or breaking and entering.

The last time Connecticut's supreme court spent much time analyzing the grand jury issue, 20 years ago, it commented: "To broaden the requirement of a grand jury indictment to include all infamous crimes would increase tremendously the expense to which the state would be put in the trial of those accused of crime."

But Gyuro's lawyers, in their appeal to the highest court, do not agree that expense is the issue. They think the question is whether citizens should be free from prosecutors "motivated largely by the zeal of their duty to combat crime."

With politicians now urging even more of that zeal, Gyuro would rather put his trust in the citizens who sit on grand juries. At least, that would give a better idea of how far the public is prepared to go in the role of prosecutor.

Almanac Predicts Cold Inaugural

By DON MACLEAN

WASHINGTON—Now that the election is out of the way, we can move along to more important things, such as almanacs for 1969. At the moment all sorts of them are coming in here (each implying it's the oldest and most reliable) and I've selected one at random for review.

This is "Baer's Agricultural Almanac" and, according to the jacket, this is its 144th year. Inaugural Day will be clear and cold, or at least that's Baer's prediction and, considering that the inaugural comes in January, I wouldn't be surprised if that turned out to be at least half-right.

Skipping over the ads telling how to get rid of ear wax, we come to some household remedies. Such as this: "Dandelion roots, collected in August, can be used in an infusion for attacks of biliousness." That's just fine, but what happens if you become bilious in, say, November?

Do you wait until August to gather dandelion roots to combat it? Or does this mean that every August you should gather as many dandelion roots as possible and store them away—in a cool, but dry place—against the day when biliousness racks your body? I do wish the almanac were more explicit.

You may be interested to know that the wettest spot in the world is Mt. Waialeale, in Kauai, Hawaii. The rainfall averages 471 inches a year there. That's one place where it WON'T be clear and cold on Inaugural Day.

The almanac contains tables and charts with signs of the Zodiac on them and I presume these are guides as to when to plant crops or your window boxes. However, I confess it's completely beyond me. In the front of the book there's a lengthy explanation on how to read the charts, but, to be honest, that's something I just don't want to know.

Here is a paragraph which simply defies understanding: "If you wish to arise at a certain hour, make with your right foot as many marks on the floor as the hour at which you wish to awake, then go to bed backwards." How does one "go to bed backwards?"

Maybe it means you're supposed to back into your bed. Or perhaps one "goes to bed backwards" by starting in one's pajamas and changing into street clothes and THEN getting into bed.

One page is devoted to giving us the group-names for animals. For instance: "A colony of ants. A cast of hawks. A hide of grouse. A wisp of snipe," etc., etc. (say, how about "A beffy of bats?")

So much for the almanac. Tomorrow, class, we shall discuss the planet Mars and I'll show slides of my vacation.

Conservative View

Patience Needed Most

By JAMES KILPATRICK

WASHINGTON—In the hectic preoccupations of this past week-end, with Humphrey surging forward and the pollsters copping out, it wasn't easy to draw a perspective on the President's announcement of a bombing halt in Vietnam. Politics got in the way.

Now it is possible to take a reflective look. Few persons who have followed the history of Communist cunning and intransigence will like what they see. So far as the large picture is concerned, very little has changed. Nothing in the President's statement, and nothing that has transpired since then, suggests that a durable peace is really much closer.

Too much had been made, in the months preceding the announcement, of the significance of a "bombing halt." All year long, student demonstrators hammered at the theme. An unreasoned notion somehow took root that it was necessary only to suspend all bombing of North Vietnam in order to bring the boys home.

Well, nobody is coming home from Vietnam. Not now. Not for months to come. What is being acclaimed as a "breakthrough" in the Paris talks may be no more than the illusory hole that is left by a bubble of swamp gas. The prospects for reunification of the Vietnamese people, under a stable government friendly to the West, have advanced by maybe a millimeter.

It is well to keep in mind that this is the eighth bombing halt the U.S. has decreed. None of the preceding seven accomplished anything. This time, it is said, the circumstances are different: The enemy was badly hurt by the allies' smashing of the abortive August offensive; moreover, Hanoi has agreed privately to certain "understandings." The diplomatic stage has broadened: For the first time, Hanoi is willing to talk directly with Saigon. There is talk of light at the end of the tunnel.

It would be pleasant to share the optimistic view—to believe that the events of last week presage an early beginning to the end. I do not share that view.

Two considerations underlie this pessimistic attitude. One is the basic instability of the government at Saigon; the other is the demonstrated zeal of the Communist leaders, both historically and in the particular context of this particular war.

The government of President Thieu, in terms of its ability to govern, is perhaps the best since the government of Diem. But when reference is made to basic instability, the operative word is "basic." A free government depends for its existence not only upon the consent of the governed but also upon a commo dedication to certain ideals. This is the stuff of which patriotism is made; it is the inner fire that burns and sustains; it is what lies deep in our own hearts, as Americans, when we pledge allegiance to "one nation, indivisible."

Can it be said, in truth, that such a common zeal ignites a national soul in South Vietnam? Is there a Dunkirk dedication there? The melancholy conviction will not go away that this necessary base—this foundation for free institutions—scarcely exists in the paddies and jungles and peasant villages of this war-weary land.

The Communist monolith rests upon a different base. It is pointless to explicate the differences among Peking communism, Hanoi communism, and Moscow communism; they are all strains of the same totalitarian virus. Their purpose is to infect the whole world, by whatever means will work toward that end. If it seems necessary temporarily to accept certain unwritten "understandings," or to give the appearance of accepting them, this will be done. Meanwhile, guerrilla warfare will continue; terrorism will continue; infiltration will continue; misunderstandings will become misunderstandings. And what's new at Panmunjom?

Fifteen months ago, this reporter was at Pearl Harbor, attending briefings by the Pacific Command. One of the military spokesmen was asked what would contribute most toward winning the war in Vietnam. "Patience," he said. It is a virtue that Americans possess in short supply. We must find it somewhere in the national character as weeks slide into months, and a winter of frustration yields to an inconclusive spring.

Harris Poll

Electoral College Hit

By LOUIS HARRIS

By a 79 to 11% margin, the American people favor abolishing the electoral college system and substituting for it election of a President by direct popular vote. By 60% to 24%, the public stands opposed to the present constitutional provision of having the House of Representatives name a President if the electoral college cannot elect him.

Last Tuesday's election of a President by less than a majority of the vote in a three-way contest raised the specter of the possibility of the 1968 election ending up in the House. As the long evening wore on and the division between President-elect Richard Nixon and Vice President Hubert Humphrey teetered back and forth, the prospects of a stalemate election became a reality to many Americans.

During the week before the voting, as the election began to narrow with Humphrey's late surge, the Harris Survey asked a series of questions of a cross section of 1,698 people:

"If the electoral college can't elect a President, the House of Representatives names the President. With each state, no matter how big or small, having one vote. In general, do you favor or oppose this present system of naming a President?"

Resolving Election in House
Total Public	Pct.
Favor	79
Oppose	24
Not sure	16

By a 5-to-1 margin, the American people went along with a suggestion made by Nixon but rejected by Humphrey: that in the case of an electoral deadlock the candidate who received the most popular votes be named President.

The cross section was asked: "Suppose no candidate receives a majority of the electoral college vote for President this time. Would you favor the man who received the most popular votes being named President or would you rather see the three candidates negotiate with each other in the electoral college?"

Give election to man with most votes?
Total Public	Pct.
Elect man with most votes	72
Negotiate in electoral college	14
Not sure	14

Although the Constitution states the procedures which should be followed in the case of a stalemate in a presidential election, the voters would rather have agreement among the nominees that the negotiating deals in the electoral college after the election could seriously compromise and even corrupt the system of governing. The prevailing view is that a prior commitment by the men running would avert behind-the-scenes dealings which might handicap any incoming administration.

However, such agreement among the candidates to support the man with the most votes is considered a temporary ameliorative at best. A much more basic step, according to 79%, is to abolish the electoral college and to elect Presidents in the future on the basis of popular vote.

One objective raised to election by popular vote is that if several men are running for the White House, the man who finishes on top might receive a relatively small portion of the vote. In effect, this could result in a man who represents a small fraction being elected to serve all the people.

To overcome this problem inherent in direct popular election of a President, Sen. Birch Bayh and others have introduced legislation that would allow a man to be declared the winner only if he received over 40% of the total vote. If he received less, a run-off election between the two top men would be required.

These results were obtained before last Tuesday's near miss in sending the election of a President to the House of Representatives. The chances are that the same question asked after this experience would show even higher percentages in favor of changing the way this country elects its President.

Undeniably, the American people want to change the system, and well before another President is elected, particularly after the tense wait-out of this past week.

HARRIS

Financial Report

By TOM MARTIN

Focus on Health! The health industry now stands where the auto industry did in 1920 — on the verge of an unprecedented prosperity. Already the nation's third largest employer, with an annual market of more than $50 billion, its future growth appears almost unlimited.

Today it is expanding in many areas. The most publicized has been the field of human transplants: hearts, lungs and other vital organs. South Africa's Dr. Phillip Blaiberg, for one, has personalized the awesome potential in this area.

Closely related to transplants are the insertions of various foreign objects in the human body. Electrical pacemakers now trigger the heartbeats of more than 10,000 individuals. Other thousands lead busy, productive lives, thanks to artificial heart valves, stainless steel and nylon arteries or flexible wire hinges joined to stiffened arthritic joints.

The foregoing ordinarily represent individual cases, requiring individual treatment. But the mass health markets appear to have equally dramatic promise. Progress in the field of electronic medical instrumentation alone is expected to lift demand from the present $200 million-$250 million a year to more than $1.5 billion within the next decade. There is an immediate need for $125 million worth of coronary-care beds and patient-monitoring equipment. Clinical laboratories are expected to double in number within the next five years. Further, as a result of Medicare and the various state health programs, as well as the sharp growth of the over-65 age group, there has been a significant expansion of and investment in institutions offering medical care, such as hospitals, nursing homes and extended-care centers.

Medicare and its companion health programs have, of course, been responsible for some of the upsurge in drug company sales and profits. For the first half of 1968, the major drug producers posted an overall gain of 8.6% in net income over the same period in 1967, on an 8.9% advance in sales.

For investors, the business of health and medical care offers a broad spectrum of opportunities. Many issues are richly priced, and in some areas the potential return hardly measures up to the risk involved. But some of the issue should prove rewarding to the patient investor.

Medical Quacks Will Be Topic On Wednesday

The question of "Why Medical Quacks Get $18 million in California Every Year" will be the topic of discussion at the Senior Adult Living program at Central Christian Church, Wednesday at 1 p.m.

Guest leader will be Mrs. Edith Canfield, Public Health Educator from the County Public Health Department. Persons who plan to attend are invited to bring a sack lunch at 12:30. Beverage and dessert will be provided.

Because of Community interest and participation the second series has started and will continue through Dec. 18. Highlights of this series will be a Thanksgiving Dinner Nov. 27, and a Christmas Luncheon Dec. 17 with special holiday music. Subjects to be discussed are Protective Services, San Diego's 200th Anniversary, Legal Aspects of Making a Will and Living Trusts and Respiratory Problems.

The public is invited to attend, free of charge. The meetings are held at Central Christian Church, 201 Fir St., in Fellowship Hall.

TAKE A GANDER!—Gary Walden and Ed Baille (Midway Marine and Electronics) are having a slight feud with John Jennings of Shelter Island Yachtways. It all began when John sent Gary a big picture of a "hogs head" inferring he was trying to "hog" all the business. Various exchanges have been made (story in Town Talk) and here are the latest—a gander (which bites) and two ducks named John and Jennings, now at home in the boat yard at Midway Marine.

Town Talk

By MARY FISHEL

NOW I'VE HEARD . . . of everything! How would you like to receive a huge picture of a "hogs head" as a gift? No? Well, how about a 40 pound pig? It all began when Ed Baille (he works for Gary Walden's Midway Marine and Electronics) decided to get a yacht salesman's license and Gary decided to begin handling used boats as well as new ones.

John Jennings (owner of Shelter Island Yachtways) has always sold both new and used . . . thus being irritated(?) by this turn of events . . . sent Gary a huge picture of a "hog's head" with a sign asking, if Gary was trying to hog all the business in town? He received a prompt reply from Gary . . . a 40 pound pig, which he took over and released in Jennings' office one morning, not realizing the office was being waxed!

The poor pig rolled all over the floor until John arrived and opened the door . . . the pig made a mad scramble for the boat yard, where he rolled in the mud, jumped into a boat, got into a truck, while all John and Gary could do was hold their sides, because they were laughing so hard!

Of course, the very next morning, when Ed arrived at work first, the pig arrived in a baby carriage . . . complete with toupee and another sign which said "My name is Gary Walden," the biggest hog in town. They also had named the pig "Barbe-cue" because John's 12 year old boy wouldn't let them butcher him!

When Ed opened the gate to the boat yard and went into the office, the next morning, he received a call from Jennings telling him he had better go out and shut the gate . . . he did so promptly, when he saw a donkey in the yard. Just as he leaned over, a goat (he hadn't noticed) charged . . . needless to say, Ed picked himself up out of the dirt and closed the gate!

Well Gary, Ed, Ed's son, Terry and Ron Basile (full office force) put their heads together and sold the donkey and the goat and purchased 100, old, stewing hens (not edible) and released them at Shelter Island Yachtways! Some were tied, but some managed to get on top of the roof! John never could locate all of them, but sold about 50 to a farmer.

The latest gift from John to Gary is two ducks (nicknamed John and Jennings) and one, mean, gander! He bites, he squawks . . . this can't be the end of the story in spite of an ominous warning from Jennings, that Gary better NOT deliver one more animal to Shelter Island Yachtways!

Wonder if they are still laughing?

FREE TESTS . . . for diabetes will be given to children and adults . . . thanks to a combined project of the Pacific Beach and Clairemont Junior Woman's Clubs, as they in turn assist the SD Chapter of the Diabetes Association.

Time will be from noon until 8 p.m. Nov. 17 at the PB Recreation Center, 1045 Diamond St. The tests will include a free urine and blood test. It is recommended that persons taking the tests should eat a diet high in carbohydrates, two hours before testing . . . foods such as sweet rolls, orange or grape juice and cereal with sugar.

This clinic is for people NOT being treated by a physician. Mrs. Glen Holdgrafer (PB Juniors) and Mrs. Richard Miller (Clairemont Juniors) will recruit volunteers from the two clubs to aid the physicians and medical laboratory technologists.

Mrs. Frederick Rohr . . . and Mrs. S. Falck Nielsen, both of Point Loma, are hard at work to make "La Boheme" due Nov. 14 and the preceding opera dinners at the Cuyamaca and University Clubs a big success.

Mrs. Rohr is in charge of the host committee and Mrs. Nielsen is chairman of the dinner at the University Club. Dr. and Mrs. Gordon R. Freeman also of Point Loma are one of the host couples.

THE ESQUIRE ROOM . . . at the Town and Country accommodated the SD Chapter of the National Association of Women in Construction Wednesday, when they heard John Bell, president of Southern California Testing Laboratories.

Vietnam was the topic and the construction Mr. Bell saw going on there on a recent visit. A no host cocktail hour preceded the 6:30 p.m. dinner.

HAVE ANY . . . left over Halloween candy, you don't care to eat? If so St. Brigid's School is collecting it for Project Handclasp, where the boys usually save it for the Vietnamese children for Christmas.

The candy must be hard and wrapped. The youngsters at St. Brigid's have collected 68 pounds so far!

Vets Plan Gala Dinner

Disabled American Veterans Auxiliary, Harry S. Nelson 2, will celebrate the 40th anniversary with a dinner at 7 p.m. Nov. 16 at Harold's, 2425 Fifth Avenue, according to Mrs. Ernestine Bowman, chairman.

A candle lighting ceremony will honor the past commander and will also be in memory of those who have served in past times.

Mrs. Marie Constable of Pacific Beach, auxiliary commander has extended an invitation to all auxiliary members as well as to members of the chapter.

Reservations may be made with Mrs. H. E. Monahan or Mrs. Marguerite Whiting by Wednesday.

Tijuana Home Tour Planned by Committee

The fifth annual Tijuana Home Tour, sponsored by the Women's Committee of the San Diego Symphony Orchestra Association and the Tijuana Auxiliary will be from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Tuesday.

A striking contrast in architectural style and decor will be seen by members and guests touring three of Tijuana's most outstanding homes.

Homes to be shown are those of Rafael Balderrabano Jayas, 500 Buena Ventura, Fracc. Chapultepec; Manuel Balderrabano Rodriguez, 744 Monterrey, Fracc. Chapultepec; and Miguel Barbachano Ramirez, 418 Jalisco, Colonia Cacho.

Use of materials from many parts of the world will be exemplified in the two year old home of Rafael Balderrabano. This contemporary home lies behind a wall of native stone bordered by flowers.

Circular stepping stones lead from the fall to the large entry foyer. An unusual touch in the living room is the light "grey palm" paneling running horizontally instead of vertically along the walls.

There are five bedrooms, plus a den, home office and a lower level playroom in this large residence. The home overlooks the Tijuana Country Club.

Also on the tour is the home of Rafael Balderrabano's parents, the Srs. Manuel Balderrabano. It is modeled after the Spanish style of architecture, from the wrought iron front gate to seven lovely arches across the front of the house.

Talavera tile, a product of Mexico, has been used throughout the house. High ceilings, at least 15 feet, are one of the unique features reflecting the influence of the family's home in Spain. Native craftsmen in Mexico City custommade the furnishings.

A sculpture-in-the-round by Hector Cartillon of dark grey concrete and granite is prominently displayed near the entrance of the Miguel Barbachano home.

The modern style of the sculpture continues into the house. Extensive use of glass paneling, avocado green carpeting and teak wood matched paneling emphasizes an artistic relationship of indoors and out.

A feeling of spaciousness is created by the glassed-in interior garden in the center of the home. There are two bedrooms plus a den, home office, and a separate building used for exercising, complete with Sauna bath.

Next to the home are two six story modern apartment buildings in the same style of the Barbachano home giving the area a feeling of progress.

An innovation this year will be the "artesiania," an exhibition of Mexican arts and crafts, representative of Mexico, in the Villa Caliente Art Gallery and the adjoining Country Club Hotel patio.

Mexican craftsmen will exhibit their skill in many trades including wood carving, leather tooling, making paper flowers, paste flowers, tin ware, wrought iron, onyx, and pinatas. These items together with a blown glass display "vidrio soplado" and an exhibit of art works may be purchased.

A Mexican musical group will play at the "artesiania." Food may be purchased at a "taco booth" and luncheon by reservation will be served at the Las Campanas Restaurant in the patio area. Other recommended restaurants will be listed in the brochure.

Coffee will be served at the "artesiania" with compliments of the Tijuana Auxiliary.

Buses will be on the Mexican side of the border to transport guests to the three homes and the Villa Caliente and to return them to the border.

The public has been invited to attend. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. William H. Van Winkle, 4111 Sunset Road. To facilitate ticket handling, it is requested those wishing tickets send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Tickets will be available the day of the tour at the border where passengers board buses. All guests will be given an identification tag to be used for tour bus transportation and entrance to the homes.

Mrs. T. Bruce Iredale and Mrs. Harley Greaves, both of Point Loma may be contacted for further information.

Winners Announced

The Torrey Pines Nine Hole Women's Golf Club will hold its traditional Turkey Sheet tournament on Tuesday and the following Tuesday.

Any women golfers interested in playing with the nine hole group have been invited to contact Elaine Pound, membership chairman, from 9:30 any Tuesday at the clubhouse.

The club recently held its annual Rodia Club championship, sponsored by Frank Rodia, professional at Torrey Pines municipal golf course.

The tournament was played on three successive Tuesdays, with two best low nets counting towards the winning scores, in three different classes.

Winners were: Class A, Mrs. Charles Farnsworth, first; Mrs. William S. Evans, second; Mrs. William F. Hein, third; Class B, Mrs. E. C. Hoffman, first; Mrs. Donald Grezze, second; and Mrs. Walter A. Turner and Mrs. Bert G. Windle, tied for third.

Class C winners were Mrs. Gordon Berneman, first; Mrs. Robert Hutchison, second; and Mrs. Frank H. Sweeney, third.

Trophies donated by Mr. Rodia will be presented to the winners at the club's annual Christmas luncheon to be held Dec. 19 at the Kona Kai Club.

Ice Cream Social Set

An "Old Fashioned Ice Cream Social" will be featured during American Education Week Open House for the Hans Christian Andersen Elementary School students and their families.

The event will take place from 7 to 9 p.m. Thursday in the school cafeteria, 4431 Mt. Herbert Ave., Clairemont.

Homemade ice cream, sundaes and banana splits will be served by fifth grade fathers. Robert McKewen, Don Spurlock and Leon Feigenbutz. Fifth grade mothers will be hostesses.

There will be live music throughout the evening. The flag presentation will be by the Student Council.

Coffee Set By Chaplains

A coffee will be held Wednesday morning at the Big Sister Home, 115 Redwood, by the San Diego Area Chaplain Wives Club.

A tour including the room sponsored and maintained by the club will be available.

Hostesses for the coffee will be Mmes. Harold Symons of Pacific Beach, Ronald Hedwall and W. Benson Mack.

The highlight will be a display and demonstration of Holiday Craft by Kaye Dicey of the Sew and So Shop of Mission Valley.

Tijuana Trip Scheduled

Excursion De Mexico, a day-long trip to Tijuana for members of the Point Loma Assembly, is being planned for Thursday by Mrs. Harold A. Thomas and Mrs. Frank Hennen.

The bus tour will leave the clubhouse, 3035 Halbot St. at 9 a.m. and return to the clubhouse at 4:30 p.m. As the bus leaves for the border each member will receive a box lunch. Since there will be an opportunity to shop Mrs. J. A. Martin, publicity chairman, suggests members bring tote bags.

The group will visit factories producing guitars, glass and pinatas, a bamboo rattan showroom and the new art gallery. The tour will end with a drive through the beautiful residential section of Tijuana.

Hostesses for the tour are Mmes. E. C. Hurst, Clifford B. Hewitt, William Waite, James A. Ogle and Allen Van Norman. Mrs. Frank Hennen and Mrs. Harold A. Thomas are taking reservations.

Proceeds will go toward philanthropic projects of the Point Loma Assembly.

NAVY WIVES CLUB

Members of the Navy Wives Club of America, Mary V. Beyer, 96, will hold a business meeting at 8 p.m. Tuesday at the Naval Training Center, Building 8.

Any enlisted wife of the Navy, Coast Guard and Marine Corps has been invited to attend. For further information call Mrs. Elliott B. Pearson of Pacific Beach, 273-5451 or Mrs. E. Dean Radke of Point Loma, 224-2572.
